BULLSBROOK MUSEUM IN WEST BULLSBROOK HALL

February 27 2013: City of Swan agreed at their Council meeting to enter into a 24 month licence agreement with BARRA to establish a Museum in the West Bullsbrook Hall. The Hall was built in 1904 using community and government funds and is Bullsbrook's oldest public building. Prior to BARRA's application the City of Swan were considering demolition of this historic building. BARRA will work towards having the Hall Heritage listed. BARRA thanks the City of Swan for the opportunity and looks forward to working together to develop this exciting new project.

April 2013 – West Bullsbrook Hall

The screenshot shows a news article on the 'in my Community' website. The article title is 'BARRA gets 24 month lease for museum', dated 17/Apr/2013, with one comment. Below the text is a photograph of two people, a man and a woman, standing in front of the West Bullsbrook Hall, a long, single-story brick building with a gabled roof.

THE Bullsbrook Residents and Ratepayers Association (BARRA) have been granted a 24-month lease of West Bullsbrook Hall to use as a historical museum.

The City of Swan granted the peppercorn lease of the hall that was closed last year due to structural and maintenance issues.

Originally built as an agricultural hall in 1904, West Bullsbrook Hall has been used for a range of purposes including as a temporary school, an RSL hall, a Country Women's Association hall and for religious services.

BARRA secretary Anne Sibbel said the hall was the first public building built in Bullsbrook and it was important to preserve it.

She said the council's buildings assets audit listed the hall as being built in the early 1950s but it was actually built earlier.

"It was recommended the hall be demolished but I went in to State records and copied the records about the hall and we submitted a request to the City of Swan to be able to use the hall as a museum."

Ms Sibbel copied records dating back to the turn of the century noting Bullsbrook residents had supplied land and money for the construction of the hall.

Records also included a news article from the Swan Express from October 1904 describing the ball that was held when the hall was opened.

City of Swan north ward councillor Kevin Bailey said the city would address the white ant issue and build a new kitchen in the hall before the BARRA sign the two-year lease.

"This building is older than the town hall; the Premier of the day came out here and there was a massive ball here," he said.

"The generation that lives here now have no idea about what actually happened in generations past. It's important to preserve it.

"The younger generations of the early settlers still live here, the Taylors and the Smiths - they were the pioneers.

"This hall will be great for the whole community," Cr Bailey said.

Bullsbrook Community and Learning Centre

Original concept by BRRA
Original Design by Roger Joyner

It's YOUR community...

Concept for Bullsbrook's new hub revealed

Tamieka Preston

The City of Swan unveiled its concept plans for a new Community and Learning Centre at two community information sessions on September 18. About 30 interested residents viewed plans and had their say on the plans for the project which will be delivered in two phases.

The first phase, due to get underway in 2014, involves the construction of one main building which will house a new library, an information centre where Bullsbrook residents can pay their rates etc and a range of multi-purpose rooms to cater for youth and neighbourhood groups. A cafe with an outdoor eating area and young children's playground is also planned.

During this phase Pickett Park Hall will be refurbished, including a long awaited upgrade to the change rooms. Phase two plans to include additional offices and a large function space.

Cr Kevin Bailey, North Ward Councillor commented "This is a very exciting project that will start the transformation of Bullsbrook and create the beginning of a true town centre. It is a major investment from the City of Swan to the tune of nearly $8.5 mil. The City has spent considerable time in consultation with the community from the very beginning and the input and enthusiasm has been fantastic. We all look forward to the opening in 2015."

BRRA (Bullsbrook Residents and Ratepayers Association) is one group who has been consulted on the plans so far, and President, Glynn Davies' feedback was that "The proposal contains a number of 'transformable' spaces but we are unsure of what the biggest space would be, even when rooms are opened up. Even within the existing Pavilion at Bullsbrook Sporting Club, we battle to have a community meeting to seat 100-200 people. This was very evident during the bushfire incident in February 2013."

BRRA secretary, Ann Sibbel said "We think the concept is great and we are looking forward to having such a great facility in Bullsbrook, however there were a few things about the design that we are concerned about. For example the cafe area is very small, and there are some issues with the size of the main foyer"

Architects at City of Swan said that they had added the rammed earth columns to the facade as a result of community feedback that the building needed to reflect its rural setting and not look too 'Ellenbrook'.

The plan is still very much at conceptual stage, and several ideas from the community will be incorporated into the next stage of the design.

Dear Mr Porter

RE: Telecommunications Issues in Bullsbrook and Gidgegannup

As you are aware, Bullsbrook and Gidgegannup are two outer metropolitan communities within the City of Swan, both of which are relatively isolated and located in high fire hazard areas.

Many City of Swan officers liaise closely with residents, businesses and community groups in these locations. As a consequence, the City is aware that these communities have, for many years, experienced rapidly deteriorating telecommunications coverage for landline and mobile phones and internet access. The current service is severely affecting these communities, essentially making it impossible for people to operate a business effectively, or even to carry out everyday tasks such as internet banking or downloading a newspaper.

Recent bushfires and blackouts of the Telstra network highlighted problems for both landline and mobile customers in these areas. In addition, on 12 January 2014, Bullsbrook experienced power outages whereby a large section of the community was without power for approximately 30 hours. This resulted in a breakdown in communication channels, as follows:

Building Bullsbrook's future

by Agnieszka Jael Kelly, The Advocate

Comments:

BULLSBROOK'S population of about 5600 is forecast to soar to more than 26,000 by 2036, and the City of Swan has released a draft plan to help better deal with the growth.

The City's Bullsbrook Townsite Land Use Master Plan will outline how Bullsbrook will cater for a 500 per cent growth rate in little more than two decades.

Significant plans include a new commercial and retail precinct opposite the existing one, a possible intermodal transport terminal, a bigger recreation centre and additional primary schools.

Bullsbrook will accommodate a portion of the half million people expected to move to the north-east corridor of the Perth metropolitan area in the next 20 years.

City of Swan Mayor Charlie Zervino said the plan would provide strategic guidance for the development of the Bullsbrook townsite.

"The City is already aware of demand for urbanisation in this area and the Master Plan has been prepared to ensure development is undertaken in a co-ordinated and proper and orderly planning manner," he said.

"The City's focus is on providing for anticipated population growth in a liveable town, which is sustainable, vibrant and prosperous."

Bullsbrook Residents and Ratepayers Association president Glenn Davies said the plan was already starting to generate discussion.

"I suspect it will generate hot debate," he said. "We are pleased this has finally been released after five to 10 years of consultation and now, as a community, look forward to hopefully moving forward sometime in the near future."

BARRA will meet soon to discuss details in the report.

Draft on Bullsbrook's future released

Posted by The Advocate News | 9 April 2014 | 492 views

The draft Bullsbrook townsite land use master plan includes a proposal to change the Great Northern Hwy and Chittering Rd intersection into a six-way roundabout and provide three new road connectors to the highway. City of Swan chief executive officer Mike Foley said there was an option to install new road connectors to the highway via Marudra Ave (a three-way signalised intersection), Dunsley St (a three-way unsignalised left in/left out intersection) and Kimberley St (a three-way unsignalised intersection).

Mr Foley said the option was recommended by Urbex Traffic Engineering Consultant with the support of traffic modelling studies and was considered a viable and safe option.

The draft Bullsbrook master plan is available for public comment until 4pm on Wednesday, May 21. Prior to that on Tuesday, May 13 the city's planning officers will be at Pickett Park Hall from 5.30pm to 8pm to provide details of the plan and to answer any questions.

The Bullsbrook Residents and Ratepayers Association welcomed the release of the draft master plan. President Glenn Davies said the association wanted as many residents as possible to attend the Pickett Park meeting.

Mr Davies said the association was meeting on Monday and could not comment on the master plan until it had a chance to discuss it.

Help pay tribute to Bullsbrook's rich history

EXACTLY 110 years ago, there was no RAAF base in Bullsbrook and the townsite was located to the west where the trains would chug into the town.

At the time, the locals sourced funding and built Bullsbrook's first public building – The Bullsbrook Agricultural Hall.

Now, having faced recent demolition, the hall has been saved, restored and is ready to be used again as a museum to document the history of Bullsbrook.

Bullsbrook Residents and Ratepayers Association secretary Anne Sibbel said the museum was looking to the public to help source artefacts, stories and exhibits for the museum.

"We're at the stage where we can start to collect items for the museum, so if anyone has anything to loan or contribute to the museum then we'd like to hear from them," she said. "There are so many changes planned for Bullsbrook that it's important we can remember and preserve that old history."

"The WA Museum has been out to advise us and have given us some good direction." As such, the history museum will be divided into five main categories – the lime mining, Country Women's Association, RAAF in Bullsbrook, pioneer families and Aboriginal heritage.

Input is also sought to document 50 years of Bullsbrook Boy Scouts and the centenary of World War I.

Call Anne Sibbel on 0418940848 or email secretary.brara@gmail.com to find out more or contribute to the museum.

Truck issues

Posted by: The Editorial Team | In General News | July 22, 2014 | 0 Comments | 20 Views

WHILE welcoming a proposed upgrade of the Great Northern Hwy and Walyunga Rd intersection, Bullsbrook residents are alarmed at the number of truck movements from a nearby sand quarry, which has applied for an expansion.

Bullsbrook Residents and Ratepayers Association president Glynn Davies said the association was very concerned about the Great Northern Hwy and Walyunga Rd intersection given the frequency of truck movements from the sand quarry on Lot 5 Walyunga Rd.

"We have had many complaints from Bullsbrook residents, inside and outside our membership, many comments on our Facebook site, and in the last week I have also had [e-mails] from Chittering residents asking if we have raised the matter at all," he said.

Mr Davies said there had been a number of reported near misses.

He said a City of Swan report on the quarry owner's application for stage three of the quarry referred to its stage two operations as having 80 truck movements (40 trucks in and 40 out) a day, as determined by the proponent.

"While this is not a condition of the licence, as highlighted by the city at the May 28 council meeting where BRRA asked questions, we estimate that just one of their customers has an average requirement of 400 truckloads a day.

"A BRRA member recently counted 84 trucks in an hour if that is anything to go by."

He said not only was "normal" traffic going to need to be managed on Great Northern Hwy during the upgrade period there could be an additional 300-400 trucks a day entering (and departing) the quarry and using the Walyunga Rd intersection.

"Essentially we are trading safety at one location (Walyunga and GNH) to fast-track conditions (and increase safety) at another location (Gateway WA)."

BRRRA 2013-2014

July 2014 – Gateway WA

GatewayWA Community Notice

26 June 2014

START OF WORKS: Great Northern Highway / Walyunga Road intersection upgrade, Bullsbrook

On behalf of Stargaze Asset Pty Ltd, owner of the Brajkovich sand quarry, the Gateway WA Alliance will be carrying out work to upgrade the intersection of Great Northern Highway / Walyunga Road. This will improve the safety of the operation of the intersection; and support the safe and continuous supply of sand from the quarry. Work is due to commence from early July 2014.

WHAT WILL THE GREAT NORTHERN HIGHWAY / WALYUNGA ROAD INTERSECTION UPGRADE COMPRISE OF?
As part of the upgrade, a new acceleration lane will be constructed to improve safety and access for vehicles, in particular trucks, turning left out of Walyunga Road to travel southbound on Great Northern Highway.

This acceleration lane will be approximately 900 metres in length and tie into the existing overtaking lane, removing the current conflict of loaded trucks entering the highway traffic at low speed.

Additionally, a new turning pocket will be constructed for vehicles turning right from Great Northern Highway onto Walyunga Road.

Passenger vehicles turning right out of Walyunga Road onto Great Northern Highway will be controlled by a give way sign and will have the ability to take refuge in the central median and therefore cross one carriageway at a time.

All works will be carried out in accordance with Austroads Standards and Main Roads WA specifications.

The proposed improvements will also benefit other road users, particularly visitors to Walyunga National Park.

See over for an image showing the upgraded intersection layout.

WHEN WILL THE INTERSECTION BE UPGRADED?
Gateway WA expects to commence site establishment works in early July 2014, with the construction of the intersection commencing soon after, once planning and environmental approvals have been granted.

Construction of the intersection will be carried out using a staged approach and is currently expected to take 12 weeks. The completion of the upgrade will be reliant on fine weather.

WHAT WORK WILL BE REQUIRED TO UPGRADE THE INTERSECTION?
The health and safety of our people and the community is the ultimate priority for Gateway WA. Safety and environmental considerations underpin everything we do, from planning through to construction and delivery.

Work to be undertaken in the vicinity of the intersection will include:

- > Use of traffic management including truck mounted attenuators, concrete traffic barriers and traffic cones
- > Investigative activities including service location / potholing and surveying
- > Installation of traffic barriers and changes to signage and line marking to alter the alignment of traffic lanes and establish work areas
- > Removal of vegetation, topsoil, asphalt and hardscaping such as kerbing

Reference: GWA-PW-COR-0056

Community Notice

- > Delivery and movement of construction materials and earthworks, as well as dust suppression activities including the use of water carts
- > Construction of pavement, involving delivery and placement of sub-base material and laying asphalt
- > Extension of existing roadside surface drainage and construction of new table drains to accommodate the road widening
- > Local Telstra service relocations.

WILL TREES NEED TO BE REMOVED AS PART OF THE UPGRADE?
Gateway WA expects the removal of some trees within approximately 5-10 metres of the intersection will be required. Every effort is being made to minimise the removal of trees, including undertaking a survey in advance of construction to identify and save significant trees wherever possible. Tree removal activities are being closely monitored by the Alliance's Environmental Team.

WILL BUS STOPS BE AFFECTED?
The upgrade of the intersection will require the temporary changes at two bus stops (numbers: 14742 for southbound buses and 15426 for northbound buses). Notification of these changes will be signed at the individual stops.

WHAT WILL THE WORKING HOURS BE?
Work will generally be carried out Monday to Saturday day shift (between 7am and 7pm).

Some work that is in close vicinity of the road is required to be undertaken at night due to the high traffic volumes on Great Northern Highway during the day.

As such, in order to establish the site there will be ten nights of work during the period from early July until early August. These working hours will be Monday to Friday between 7pm and 7am.

Additionally, some work may be required outside of these times, on these occasions advance notice will be given to nearby residents.

Gateway WA recognises the impact out of hours works may have on local residents and will make every effort to minimise disruption.

WILL THERE BE CHANGED TRAFFIC CONDITIONS DURING CONSTRUCTION?
Changed traffic conditions will be in place while some of these works are underway, including a reduced speed limit, storage operations, lane closures and the use of the side road to the west of Great Northern Highway. Signage will be in place to guide motorists through any changed traffic conditions.

HOW IS THE UPGRADE BEING FUNDED?
The design and construction of the intersection is being funded by Stargaze Asset Pty Ltd (Brajkovich), the owner of the adjacent sand quarry, not Gateway WA or the State Government.

Gateway WA has committed to carry out the works to upgrade the intersection to support the safe and continuous supply of sand from this quarry to the Gateway WA Perth Airport and Freight Access project given the critical nature of raw material to the construction program.

WHAT QUANTITIES OF SAND ARE BEING USED FOR THE GATEWAY WA PERTH AIRPORT AND FREIGHT ACCESS PROJECT?
The Gateway WA Perth Airport and Freight Access project is the single largest road project ever undertaken by Main Roads. To deliver this national priority project, Gateway WA requires approximately four million tonnes of sand. To meet this requirement, the project is sourcing material from a number of suppliers and by managing the earthworks (cut/fill) locally within the project boundaries. It is anticipated that the Gateway WA project will utilise in the order of 1.6 million tonnes from the Brajkovich sand quarry.

The exact number of trucks may vary daily (due to the changing requirements on-site at the Gateway WA project), however, on average it is anticipated there will be a fleet of 65 trucks that will carry approximately six loads each day.

Based on the current program it is anticipated that the extraction operations required for the project to be completed by May / June 2015.

WANT TO KNOW MORE?
Local residents are encouraged to contact Gateway WA using the details below should they have any questions or feedback during construction, including more information about any activity including methodology, equipment required, timing or location.

Community centre needed now

Published by The Editorial Team in General News on January 6, 2014 at 10:22 am

BULLSBROOK residents approve of the City of Swan's efforts to plan for future community facilities but maintain the area needs a community centre "here and now" according to the Bullsbrook Residents and Ratepayers Association.

The association's president Glynis Davies said for some time the residents' association had been pushing for an upgrade of Pickett Park Hall, which had been used as an evacuation centre during the Shady Hills fires in February.

Mr Davies said earlier this year after discussions between the association and north ward councillor Kevin Bailey the city had undertaken a full community consultation process of what residents thought was needed in the area.

This process would result in bigger and better facilities in the long term.

"But this could take five to eight years, which is well beyond the 18 month to three year plan we had envisaged as it will take them longer to deliver on what they seem to be planning for after the community consultation," he said.

Mr Davies said in the-mean time there was a lack of community facilities for residents who wanted to access things such as playgroups through to social events for seniors.

He said the Bullsbrook Sporting Association catered for people involved in football and bowls and some groups including the association held monthly meetings there.

But the Bullsbrook Neighbourhood Centre had folded last year and there was a desperate need for more facilities for young people.
